Indian and global customers, the group said in a statement.

Air Works is engaged in the business of base maintenance for narrow-body and turboprop aircraft, as well as rotary aircraft from its facilities at Hosur, Mumbai and Kochi. Apart from civil aviation sector, Air Works has built capabilities in defence MRO, executing projects for key platforms of Indian Navy and Indian Air Force.

On 20 September, Mint

reported that the Adani Group has identified defence and aerospace as one of the key areas for acquisitions and has set aside $1 billion purely for defence acquisitions via Adani Defence and Aerospace Ltd.

"The group's plan is aligned with the country's goal to strengthen the technology play in defence space. Certain (acquisition) opportunities have been identified, especially in the field of advanced technology, artificial intelligence and machine learning to bring in higher efficiency," the Mint report had said, citing sources.

Jeet Adani, director, Adani Airports, said, "The Indian aviation industry stands at a transformative juncture, now the third largest globally and on track to induct over 1,500 aircraft in the coming years."

The government has been emphasizing indigenization of India's defence capabilities as part of its goal for the country to become a net defence exporter.
