GUL PANAG

Sundeep Gajjar: Welcome to MotoVilla! Today, we have a very special guest, an icon for many women in India—Gul Panag. Finally, you're here... with Daku (her dog).

Gul Panag: Yes, finally. Good to see you, Sunny.

Sundeep Gajjar: Same here! How are you?

Gul Panag: Very well, thank you.

Sundeep Gajjar: So, let us get started. For me, you've always been that petrolhead because you do so many things—you're a pilot, I mean, I don't need to list them all now.

Gul Panag: You're very kind, Sunny. Thank you!

Sundeep Gajjar: But you do wear a lot of hats... quite like our MotoVilla. It also serves as the xBhp HQ.

Gul Panag: Okay...

Sundeep Gajjar: It's like a man cave. I am not sure who coined the term but I have designed and worked on it for a long time to make sure it is as much a dreamland for every petrolhead as it can be—full of things related to motorcycles and pop culture alike.

Gul Panag: This is really interesting!

Sundeep Gajjar: (Showing her our Pulsar Classic 180) This is my first bike, by the way—it's a Bajaj Pulsar 180. I got it in 2002. I started with this, (moving on to the Apache RR 310) and then I got this Apache RR 310, which is made in India. I'm vocal about Made in India products because we've reached a stage where we're making such amazing motorcycles here.

Gul Panag: This is a very capable bike.

Sundeep Gajjar: Exactly!

Sundeep Gajjar: I'm also connected to this space in a way. Since my childhood, I've been influenced by pop culture, comics, and, of course, motorcycles. This one is also Made in India— (showing her the Pulsar NS400Z) the latest Pulsar, very capable.

Gul Panag: Yeah, I'm riding this tomorrow! What Bajaj has done over the years is phenomenal.

Sundeep Gajjar: And here are some helmets from video games and movies. Every item here has a story, and everything means something. (Showing her our ZX-10R) AND this is the bike I ride at the BIC racetrack. Want to hear it?

Gul Panag: Yeah!

(The engine sound startled Gul's dog so we couldn't keep it going)

Sundeep Gajjar: So, this place is called a motocave. It's full of things I like to collect. Scale models, stuff from video games and movies, and so on.

Gul Panag: Collectibles.

Sundeep Gajjar: Yes, exactly. So, I want to ask you how important is the beauty of a machine to you?

Gul Panag: I think it's a bit of both, Sunny. Aesthetics are important because that's the first impression you get, but performance and how the machine handles are what really keep you engaged with it. So, looks are very important at first, but after that, functionality takes precedence.

Sundeep Gajjar: What do you think is the most beautiful motorcycle being made in India right now, across all categories?

Gul Panag: I'm partial to retro-looking, classic bikes. Classic is a category that every bike manufacturer now has, thanks to Sid Lal and his vision with Royal Enfield. He not only created a category but also dominated it, and now every OEM in India has a modern-classic or retro line-up. Some foreign OEMs are also launching retro-style bikes here. Personally, I love that classic look. For me, it's either the classic-retro or adventure motorcycles because they're so comfortable and have great seating positions.

(The Ghostbusters car caught her eye) Hey, isn't that the Ghostbusters car?

Sundeep Gajjar: I'm impressed you know what it is! 90% of people don't.

Gul Panag: You haven't been hanging around cool enough people.

Sundeep Gajjar: See, this is where the connection comes in. Some people call these "toys," but to me they are more than that. That reminds me, I would like to add 1:3 scale models of Royal Enfield. You must have a few, right?

Gul Panag: I actually try to keep things minimal these days. A few years ago, I'd collect a lot, but now, I prefer less. In my office, I have one model of a car and also a motorcycle. Other than that, most of the stuff given to me, I give away to people who appreciate it more. I believe less is better. But I really like your place; it's like a pop culture and automotive museum!

Sundeep Gajjar: Thank you. That's a complement and a half. Now, I'd love to ask you about Magucho, your venture. What is it?

Gul Panag: It stands for "Make a Good Choice." We curate experiences. For example, if someone wants to walk into a place like this, they can come and experience it—it's all about the experience. We list unique experiences that either don't exist yet or need some vetting before being made available to the public. For example, we've launched horseback riding, and breakfast rides in Delhi-NCR.

These are experiences I've always wanted but only got the privilege to access due to my circumstances. Now, we're democratising access to quality experiences. The other thing we do is create "bite-sized" Sunday rides, where people can bring their own bikes or rent one, go for a short ride, and stop somewhere to experience something. It's about slowing down, having a cup of chai, and enjoying the moment, rather than just zooming from point A to point B.

Sundeep Gajjar: What about cars? I saw you with the BE6– what do you think about it?

Gul Panag: I've got a lot to say about Mahindra's electric SUVs. Despite being a petrolhead, I've been fascinated by electric vehicles (EVs) for a long time. My primary commute vehicle is an electric car, the e2o, and I've been driving it since 2015 in Mumbai. I love EVs because of their performance. There's no power lag, and even lower-end EVs have instant acceleration that often outperforms an internal combustion engine (ICE) in the same class.

I've been following Formula E since 2014, and when I learned about Mahindra's plans to create electric vehicles from scratch instead of retrofitting existing models, I was really excited. When I first saw the electric SUV at the unveiling, I thought it was a concept car. But when they told me this was the car I'd be driving, I couldn't believe it. It looked like something out of Total Recall! I loved it, and I can't wait to get mine.

Sundeep Gajjar: Mahindra has done really well lately– I can vouch for that because I own a Thar.

Gul Panag: I have one too, but now I'm leaning towards the 5-door. I am little torn. That's another thing. I have houses in two different cities but the parking situation is the same. It is difficult to accommodate a lot of cars.

Sundeep Gajjar: On the note of electric vehicles, you are a pilot as well so how about an electric plane?

Gul Panag: I guess there are a few out there actually. I believe we'll have them in the mainstream commercial flights sooner rather than later.

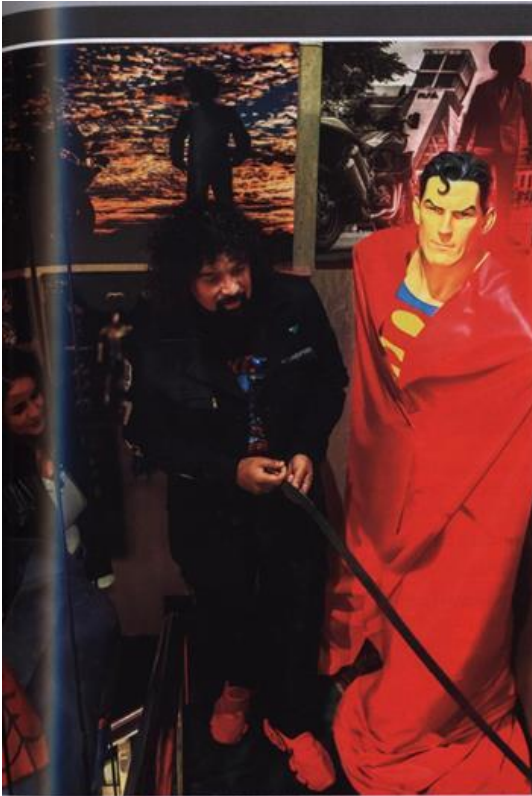

Sundeep Gajjar: So you really think electric is the future? And does it provide the same adrenaline rush?

Gul Panag: Let's talk about the adrenaline rush first. I think electric cars actually provide a greater rush. I've had the privilege of driving Renault's retired F1 car in France back in 2008. The most overpowering thing when driving a high-performance car is the sound. When you take that away, all you're left with is raw speed. That's why I feel the adrenaline from electric cars is a bit scarier. In an ICE car, the sound gives you feedback about your speed. But in a well-built EV, there's no sound, so you only know your speed by looking at the speedometer. It can easily be terrifying for someone who isn't used to them, especially the acceleration.

#motoGrapher Talks

76 | Feb - Mar '25 | Extra Braking Horse Power

Sundeep Gajjar: Do you think the sound makes it more engaging?

Gul Panag: The adrenaline rush in EVs is more deceptive. In a V8, the sound tells you a lot about your speed. In an EV, you can be at dizzying speeds without realizing it until you check the speedo. It's that sudden acceleration that catches you off guard, and that's what brings the rush. You need to be more mindful, and that's where the engagement comes from. But that's just my perspective.

Sundeep Gajjar: I have a simulator for racing games here, but I believe you have something more advanced.

Gul Panag: I have a gaming computer that we built. I don't have much time for gaming anymore, but I do have an aircraft simulator for practice. I make it a point to spend 8-9 hours on it before I get into a real aircraft since I don't fly daily.

Sundeep Gajjar: Does it help?

Gul Panag: Absolutely! It helps with hand control and activates the muscle memory needed for flying. It gets the motor controls sorted and helps retrain my mind for the real thing.

Sundeep Gajjar: We've got a little rapid-fire for you. Are you ready?

Gul Panag: Yes.

Sundeep Gajjar: Ferrari or Lamborghini?

Gul Panag: Lamborghini.

Sundeep Gajjar: Electric or ICE?

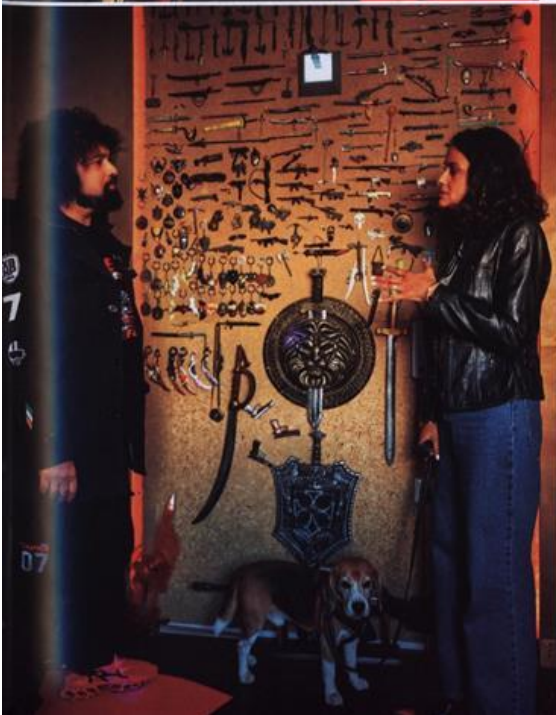

Gul Panag: Electric, now.

Sundeep Gajjar: Track or off-roading?

Gul Panag: Off-roading.

Sundeep Gajjar: Torque or power?

Gul Panag: Torque, since it's what matters more when off-roading.

Extra Braking Horse Power | Feb-Mar'25 | 77

Sundeep Gajjar: SUV or roadster?

Gul Panag: SUV.

Sundeep Gajjar: A red car or a Nardo grey one?

Gul Panag: Red. My Thar is red.

Sundeep Gajjar: Mountains or beaches?

Gul Panag: Beaches with mountains, like in South Africa.

Sundeep Gajjar: Northeast India or New Zealand?

Gul Panag: Northeast India. I had the privilege of shooting there for The Family Man, and it was amazing. There's so much to explore, the people are wonderful, and the food is great.

Sundeep Gajjar: Bollywood or Tollywood?

Gul Panag: I haven't done much in Tollywood, just one Telugu film. But, to me, it's all about acting, so I don't really have a preference.

Sundeep Gajjar: Rajnikanth or Amitabh Bachchan?

Gul Panag: I haven't really thought much about that one, but I'd say Nagarjuna.

Sundeep Gajjar: Flight simulator or F1 car simulator?

Gul Panag: Flight simulator. The F1 simulator doesn't give much feedback unless you have the full setup, which includes the G-force experience.

Sundeep Gajjar: Positive characters or negative ones?

Gul Panag: I'd like to do a negative role now. I want to push myself as an actor, so a well-written antagonist is something I'd love to explore.

Sundeep Gajjar: Milind Soman or Hrithik Roshan?

Gul Panag: That's a tough one, but Milind can run a lot. I believe in functional fitness over just aesthetics, so functional fitness is more attractive to me.

Sundeep Gajjar: Chris Hemsworth or Henry Cavill?

Gul Panag: Henry Cavill, hands down. No contest.

Sundeep Gajjar: That's it. Thank you so much for your time, Gul. Before you go, I'd like to gift you the xBhp print magazine. And also, from the memory bank, you were a part of our print magazine during the very first #roadTripUnited.

Gul Panag: Oh yes, it's been such a long time since then. And thank you, Sunny, for this copy. Again, you're incredible. Thank you so much for your time.
